

Praying in Solidarity with Refugees

A new selection of prayers, liturgy and reflections for Advent, Christmas, Epiphany & beyond...

Sometimes we can provide material goods to help someone. Other times we can make a financial donation or join advocacy efforts.

We can always pray or spend time in solidarity with refugees and forced migrants who need to know they are not alone in their journey to hope or safety.

We have put together a selection of spiritual poems, writings, prayers and ideas for a short service of intercession for your own use or with a group or parish.

Many parishes and individuals have been in touch with us asking what they can do to respond to the needs of refugees at this time. These prayers have been compiled by Geoffrey Duncan, author and editor, with friends who have given their permission for their contributions to be included. Thank you

“Yes, refugees always hope to find safety and protection. And hope along with faith gives a resilience to people to help them overcome obstacles and dangers.”

“I believe in you and I know that you are with me everywhere.” Cecile, who was a member of the women’s prayer group at JRS UK
